Holly's career began in the early 1980's with a focus on three day eventing, after being introduced to three day eventing in the Middletown Pony Club. In 1984 Holly was awarded the Harry T Peters trophy for winning the National Young Riders Championships. Holly also received the prestigious Lionel Guerrand Hermes award, given to a young rider who exemplifies the USET Foundation's ideals of sportsmanship and horsemanship. Subsequent awards awarded to Holly include the Brianne Goutal (2005) and Hillary Dobbs (2008).

In 1991, Holly shifted her focus to show jumping and by 1993 was jumping Grand Prix courses under the guidance of George Morris at Hunterdon. Through the 1990's Holly trained with and for both George Morris and Anne Kursinski, bringing along several horses to the Grand Prix level.

In 2004 Holly joined the Hunterdon staff, specifically to uphold George Morris' standard of excellence while he and Chris Kappler focused on the Athens Olympics. Holly rode Kappler's string of horses as well as client horses, taught lessons and participated in the care and exercise program of Royal Kaliber, Kappler's Olympic mount. Holly maintained the business at home while Chris, George and Royal toured Europe and went on to Greece.

In 2005 Holly moved on to start Attiva Farm with her friend Cindy Harrington. Attiva Farm is located in Wellington, Florida. Their focus is bringing along amateur riders and talented horses.
